Welcome to The 7th Continent "Print'n'Play" demo

The 7th Continent is a cooperative exploration and survival board game for 1 to 4 players.

This demo for 1 to 3 players introduces the main mechanics of the game. However, be aware that many aspects of the full adventure are not covered here, like choosing which direction to take while exploring the continent, curses and their clues, hunting, food, fire, experience points, levelling up characters (Advanced Ideas), botany, secondary quests, companions and many other things.

Aim of the game

In this demo, players win if they manage to reach the seventh continent!

Setup

To play this demo, you need:

- » a printer allowing double-sided color printing;
- » 8 sheets of paper (ideally double-sided photo paper or thick paper such as Bristol board);
- » 6 6-sided dice,
- » as many tokens or figures as the number of players; to represent characters.

Before the game, you must:

- » download the alpha version of the game rules, available on the project's Kickstarter page:
<https://www.kickstarter.com/projects/1926712971/the-7th-continent-explore-survive-you-are-the-hero>;
- » print the pages of this document in color, selecting the double-sided printing mode;
- » cut out the cards and sort the numbered green cards and yellow cards from 001 to 017, without looking at them, to form the Exploration Deck;
- » give each player one Character card;
- » shuffle the blue cards to form the Action Deck, after removing those specific to the characters who will not be used in your game;
- » make a pile with Random event cards (with their «fog of war» face up);
- » give each player a certain number of 6-sided dice (4 d6 with 1 player, 3 d6 with 2 players and 2 d6 with 3 players), which will represent the items in his/her inventory;
- » give each player the token or figure representing his/her character.

Numb with cold, you land on what looks like an islet. You are sure that the 7th continent must not be very far now.

002

A grave was dug here. Two boards were tied together with a shoelace to form a basic cross.

The skeleton you bring to light has worn out clothes that seem to belong to a Westerner.

As you scrutinize the sandy beach, you spot strange yellowish globes.

The initials of the deceased were engraved onto a basic cross. You had never pictured yourself digging up a corpse. Until now!

The perspective of exhuming a rotting dead body disgusts you.

All characters involved must randomly discard an Idea card from their hand.

In front of you, a sea turtle the size of a big turkey is moving slowly along the beach. Will you follow your path or try to catch it?

    Discard this and replace it with a card. All characters involved move their figurine to this Terrain card.

You find a handwritten page in one of the pockets of the deceased's jacket. Most of its content has faded and is illegible.

...is haunting our nights. We have followed the seagulls and may have found a way to leave this islet. To do this, we must CATCH FOUR TIMES ONE TURTLE. Unfortunately, it is too late for our colleague and friend, Professor James W. Mitchum. Rest in peace. We have committed sacrilege in coming here and there is no doubt now that we are cursed. May God help us.

Turtle eggs are half-buried in the sand. They are too fragile to be carried around, but you could as well eat them here and now.

   Randomly take 3 cards from the Discard and shuffle them back into the Action Deck.

The eggs break as you lift them. Their mouth-watering contents spill on the sand.

You rush to the turtle, but it turns out to be surprisingly quick and runs away without leaving you a chance to catch it.

A group of sea turtles is swimming among the reefs about fifty yards from the shore. While watching them, you start wondering if you could leave the islet swimming and for how long you would be able to withstand the strong current until you run out of forces.

The sand is covered with many fragments of turtle egg shells. You should be warned if somebody or something tried to come near you.

You scan the sea wondering how long you would be able to swim before running out of forces.

Off you go for the seventh continent

Pushed by rear currents, you sail to the open sea at a fast pace. After a long time, you start making out the wild coast of the 7th continent.

As you meditate in silence, strange visions take shape in your mind, as though the statue tried to communicate with you.

Ferdinand Lachapellière

This French adventurer has been exploring the yet undiscovered territories of the world for over thirty years and certainly feels more comfortable in a tropical jungle than at high society cocktail receptions.

Twice, Ferdinand was the only survivor of disastrous expeditions, which says a lot about his extraordinary surviving skills.

Because of these tragic circumstances, even now his peers are very suspicious about him, wondering how far he had to go to save his skin.

Dimitri Gorchkov

Dimitri is not too fond of talking about his origins and motivations. Rumor has it that he escaped from the Peter and Paul Fortress in Saint Petersburg, where he was being held for "anarchistic activities and propaganda".

He may have joined the expedition as a security expert to leave his troubled past behind him.

The scars on his body and the way he screams when he wakes up in the morning say more about his story and his ability to face adversity than he ever would.

Keelan McCluskey

The heiress of a wealthy manufacturer, Keelan has always been passionate about herbs and plants. Thanks to her knowledge in botany, she was able to survive being poisoned by her unmannerly husband, whose greed led him to the gallows.

Freed from her married life Keelan got involved in the first expedition to the seventh continent, which she partly funded. She plans to name the first carnivorous plant she discovers after her ex-husband.
